Is It Rheumatism.

Aren't You Really on the Wrong Track?

A good share of so-called rheumatism is caused by weak kidneys. When the kidneys fail to clear the blood of uric acid, the acid irritates the delicate nerves. Torturing pains dart through the affected part whenever it is moved. By strengthening the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills have proven their worth in thousands of so-called rheumatic cases, lumbago, sciatica, gravel and urinary disorders. Doan's are well known in Norway and warmly recommended by Norway people. Read this Norway case:

M. M. Kilgore, Danforth street, Norway, says: "I had backache and rheumatic pains for more than a year. My kidneys were the cause of the trouble. Sometimes I was so lame I could hardly stand. I did not rest much and was feeling miserable when I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I got them at Stone's Drug Store and a few boxes cured me."

Three years later, Mr. Kilgore said: "I have never had the slightest return of kidney trouble since Doan's Kidney Pills cured me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kilgore had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

HIS NINE REASONS

for Running a "W & B" Mower

1. Clean and even cutting.

2. Easiest running account of lighter draft.

3. "W & B" Mowers cost less per year because they last longest.

4. Simple construction, resulting in less parts to get out of order.

5. Oil retaining chambers easily accessible to the running parts.

6. Self-sharpening due to the easy adjustment which will give a "shear cut" to the knives.

7. Longer life on account of highest grade raw materials and greatest strength of parts where strength is needed.

8. Cutting blades of resaper knife steel, crucible grade of special analysis designed to resist the friction wear of hard usage.

9. Each mower is run in a special testing machine and rigidly inspected to see that the parts are perfect and correctly adjusted before shipping.

Call at our store and we will demonstrate to you these nine reasons.

BRIDGTON, MAINE

On a City's Streets

(Written for the Advertiser) From a quiet seat beside the street, in a busy thriving town, I watched the travelers come and go as they passed me up and down.

Far away from my rural home, The faces were strange to me; I scanned with care each passerby, And watched what I might see.

I heard merry laughing voices, As the children tripped along; That dream of love and song, Women wear there with care worn brow.

But kindly pleasant eye, And stately dames from homes of wealth, Where victory quite modestly, The man of the world with careless tread, The dandy with his strut and cane.

The banker thinking of bonds and gold, The merchant earnest for gain, Stalwart sons and daughters of toil, Where walking men of haste.

To stork of whistle, clang of bell, There's no time for them to waste. Others alas! I was and to see, Women for power that saves, Are drifting down through squalor and

To sleep in felons' graves. From church of God and pleasure's halls From the slum and beggar's huts From happy homes and splendid shines, From mansions where innocence fall, From grocery, from great saloon, Where painted beauty's lustful lives, Are aching with the pain of love, From force and anvil shop and mill, From office and from store, From slums and dens of crime, From the sun to the streets of men.

This surging mass of human life, Still is passing day by day, I gazed into my quiet home, On the hillside far away.

Where summer's woods and fields are sweet With breath of flowers and flowers, I list to songs of caroling birds, Floating over from sylvan bowers.

Or in winter harken to the shrieks in night, I watch the whirling drifting snows From my fire-warmed chair.

HARRY FARRAR. South Paris.

Contrasts

Were it not for storms and wet spells And the clouds of gloom and hate, Earth would lose its gladness contrasts

When sun shines in heaven's blue, A melody quite heavenly, Would ensnare the lives of men, Were the sun to rise and set, And the rains fall never again.

So, in life, oft dull and equally, Joy drives of melancholy, When comes happiness warm glow; We'd be different men and women, Were the contrasts all left out, And the always happy person, Feel the contrasts all left out!

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such a cure should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten times to the good you can possibly derive from them.

Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and acts upon the blood. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Ten Important Rules

1. Are our boys and girls interested in our farm, in the activities of our neighborhood and in our school?

2. Is there a silo on our farm and do we feed silage to our herd?

3. How many farmers in our section raise bred-for-production live stock?

4. Are we doing our part to advance our community by supporting its church and school?

5. Are we subscribing to a wide-awake weekly paper?

6. Are we employing a competent teacher for our children?

7. Are we making a careful study of our business, keeping records of accounts and are making our farm pay interest on the investment?

8. Is our county superintendent interested in farming?

9. Are we co-operating with our neighbors?

10. Are we marketing our products to best advantage?

While neighborhoods can always, if they will, do more for individuals it is usually up to a very few to set the pace. Rural leadership is all that many a community lacks to make it one of the most prosperous and pleasant spots.

The Maine Automobile Association is to do everything in its power to prevent automobile speeding on the new State highways. In addition to posting signs the association will do everything in its power to get the license numbers of automobiles who operate their cars recklessly and without regard to the safety of others and who also break the speed laws on the new State highways and report them to the Maine State highway commission and to the secretary of State for investigation and prosecution. Every effort will be made to have the licenses of reckless drivers taken away from them. Fast driving destroys the best of highways and reckless driving imperils the lives of others and the Maine Automobile Association has taken a strong stand against both.

Every Day View of California Exposition

Within the last few years they have invested some of their earnings in two fine cottages on the lake, which they rent, and this fall, plan to build another for the same purpose. They have an only son who is an automobile expert and who is teaching an automobile school in Oakland. Mrs. Evans' sister, Mary C.
Barker, who is married and lives at Jewell City, Kansas, occasionally spends a winter in California, with her husband and occupies one of these cottages. They were expected in about two weeks when I was there and would have been there several weeks sooner but were delayed by the sickness of a friend in Michigan, which I very much regretted, as I would have liked to have met them.

Mr. Stetson was planning to spend his summer vacation with his son Edward in Chicago. And when I left was making preparation for his journey. He intended to go the Northern route and visit a lady friend on the way, who as a little girl was a member of his family for several years at their home in Oakland. The Monday, May 24th I started east going by the way of the Western Pacific,
through Stockton, Sacramento, the wonderful Feather River country, over the great salt beds of Utah (these beds are 60 miles long, 8 miles wide and from one to fourteen feet in depth and are said to be 98 per cent pure salt) to Salt Lake City.
From there on the Denver and Rio Grande to Denver, then on the Burlington route to Lincoln, Neb., where I stopped off for two days to visit friends.
The Western Pacific is a new line and it and the Rio Grande is what is called the Scenic Route, and is noted for its grand mountain and canyon scenery and its high mountain passes. The highest point, Tennessee Pass, is 10,240 feet.
After crossing the California line into Nevada there are but eight stations on the entire line to Denver that have an elevation below 4,000 feet.

I was a few hours over three days and nights on the road to Lincoln and although there was much rainy weather,
and I rode in lower 13 on the tourist sleeper I came through all safe and had a pleasant journey.

Not wishing to be held up by the dining car trust I went with Henry Stearns to a bakery in Oakland and filled my lunch basket with doughnuts, apple pies, and walnuts, meats and cheese and bought a dozen fine oranges at a total cost of 85 cents, which lasted me through, and before I left the train at Lincoln I divided quite a little surplus with some hungry children that were on the train and as
on that same day I weighed a trifle over 200 pounds I have not been grumbling about the "High cost of living". On Saturday noon May 29th after a pleasant two days visit in Lincoln I continued my journey, going to Omaha, then to Sioux City and at break of day, Sunday morning arrived at Hurley, S. D.

I visited over Sunday with my nephew,
C. E. Andrews. On Monday I attended decoration day services, and in the evening rode out to the farm with George Piper, the efficient manager of the farm for the last five years. Mr. Piper was born in Maine and his father when a boy lived at Green Hill and was acquainted with Capt. Henry Hutchins, David Hill and many other old time residents.

Although the season in South Dakota
and all over the west was cold and backward, there was plenty of moisture in the soil, and the prospect for bumper crops was never better. I found but one sad feature of my visit. About the first of last January, Mrs. Piper after undergoing a serious surgical operation, died, leaving a family of nine children, one of them a baby, who greatly needed a mother's care.

After a visit of nearly two weeks amongst old friends and neighbors in and around Hurley, I continued my journey
on to Madison, Wis., where I visited from Saturday morning until Friday noon with the Healds, Henry and Hattie, who always insist that I stop off and visit with them when on my way to or from Ohio. I found them in good health and enjoying life to its full capacity.

Their son-in-law, Prof. Lewis Kahen-berg of the state University with his wife and three children plan a summer vacation trip from which they anticipate much pleasure. He has purchased a power and sail boat (The Otis) 15 feet long and 16 feet beam. They will start somewhere on the Atlantic coast, follow the shore line I think around to the mouth of the Saint Lawrence, ascend that river and return through the great Lakes to Milwaukee. Mr. Heald's son, Fred is now Plant Pathologist of the State University of Washington, where he now resides, and for quite a long time has written his name, Prof. Fred D. Heald.

Henry is an enthusiastic fisherman and knowing me to be such, Monday morning
he had a row boat engaged for us to go fishing on the lake, but I thought it too venturesome for two kids like us, one 70 and the other 80 to venture out on the deep waters of the lake, so we did not go,
and I received the warm commendation
of Mrs. Heald for my good judgement.

On Tuesday noon Henry loaned up his trusty old carriage horse and took me to the station where I boarded my train for Milwaukee, where I changed cars and took a train for Chicago and arrived in the Windy City about six in the evening.
The great street car strike was on and vast crowds of people thronged the streets and railroad stations waiting for the trains to take them out to their homes in the near by towns. The transfer bus of which I was the only passenger had no trouble in going to the B. & O. depot.
On the streets every conceivable kind of conveyance was eagerly used; autos, express wagons and great auto trucks were loaded to their fullest standing capacity.
I saw a one seated, one horse democrat
wagon with four chairs in it, which reminded me of the good old Pioneer days in the Dakotas when we were right in style going to church in a big lumber wagon with common chairs or boards for seats, and trusty old Bill and Dan or Huck and Bright hitched to the wagon and plodding slow and safely to and from the meeting place.

I have been through Chicago many time before and always there was more or less congestion at the street crossings, but that night after the great rush was over, the streets were deserted and there seemed to be a great calm. The calm before the storm; but the storm did not come, for before morning the strike was settled, and the city resumed its usual healthy and normal course.

At 9:30 my train was called and I started out on the last leg of my journey.
There were but six passengers on the through cars to Columbus, Newark and Wheeling, W. V. At nine o'clock the next morning I changed cars at Zanesville, Ohio and at noon arrived at Marietta. From which place I had started on a hurry call to Tropic, Cal., on the 19th day of January last.

I had traveled some 7,000 miles on the round trip, and this was my fifth trip to California. I found the family all well and prospering. As elsewhere it has been wet and cold with occasionally hot, dry spells and the crops are doing fine. Winter wheat they say is good and most of it harvested. I have not heard from the blueberry crop in Maine yet, and am undecided whether to make the trip down there this fall or not. Speaking of blueberry times reminds me of the swift flight of time. It seems but a little while, a year or two at most, since my last visit to the old Pine Tree state. But glancing over my scrapbook where all my Advertiser letters are pasted, I find No. 22 and by referring to my diary, I find that August 11, 1911 I spent at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Andrews. So four full years will have passed since I picked the tooth-
some berries from Maine's native bushes,
and visited with old friends in Lovell Town.

In those four years death has been very kind to the friends I knew, for I have read of but two who have passed away.
Mrs. Allard of Lovell and Mrs. Webster of New Hampshire.

In the good old days when Lovell
youth were in their prime, John Elliott and his sister, Phebe, were an active part of Lovell Center social set. Their pew in church was from one end and they were always on hand to help out with any social function. They lived good and useful lives, and the world was made better by their living.
Mary Kelley Webster was one of my favorite cousins. In the summer of 1866
I worked for her father on the old Kelley farm in Conway, when she was about 12 years of age. And although I have seldom met her since, I have always held in high regard the bright, sensible little school girl who in later years developed into a grand and useful woman. She sleeps today beneath the green and restful sod, in the old home burying ground
in West Fryeburg, beside a host of her kindred friends. May we not fondly hope and believe that her spirit form, freed from its moldering clay, unseen, yet
felt, is ever hovering near the dear ones left behind. To be their Guardian Angel and at last when they cross the silent river of death, to welcome them upon the bright endless shores of eternity.

Our Advertising is Meant To be Helpful

Each year there are many young men in Oxford County starting in business; they are unfamiliar with the real help that a progressive, conservative Bank can be to them.

Many are just beginning to earn; some of them will be influenced to save by opening a bank account by our articles on banking.

There are those also to whom the Bank's exchange and collection facilities are an advantage, or they may be interested in placing their money at interest or buying Travelers' Cheques. And so through every branch of banking.

It is important for all of these people to know the facilities that good banking affords; perhaps it is quite as important for them to know the special features of convenience and advantage that have been steadily developed and perfected in this Bank as it is for us to make them known.

Hence it is that we not only publish advertisements from time to time, but try to put into them as much information as possible.

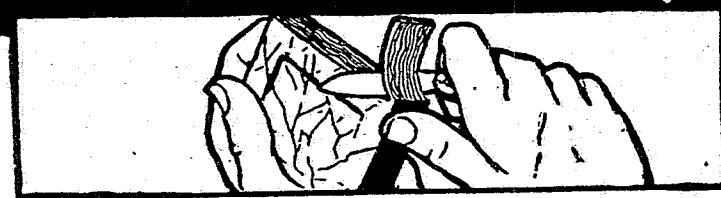

On the basis of real banking service we are pleased to invite additional accounts from corporations, firms and individuals, each of whom is certain of every courtesy, every service, every accommodation that a strong, conservative, completely equipped Bank can render.

Your Pocket-Knife, the Best Tobacco-Cutting Machine

Because it cuts the tobacco off the plug as you use it—insuring you fresh tobacco for every pipeful. Real tobacco flavor depends upon the leaf being preserved in its natural state, possible only by pressing the leaves into plug form and keeping it in by covering it with a natural leaf wrapper. The natural flavor and strength of tobacco escape when cut or granulated.

Take a Plug of Sickle that is even thoroughly dried out so that when you whittle it off it crumbles into dust, but it will burn and smoke smooth and cool as it has all of its original tobacco flavor preserved, unevaporated in Plug Form.

Whittling a pipeful is little trouble, amply repaid in both quality and quantity. Try this experiment and judge for yourself.

Our Enemy, The Fly

A tiger or poisonous reptile about the streets of our town would arouse the whole population to action and the dangerous animal would be killed, but we live with composure where animals which cause more deaths than the tigers are allowed perfect freedom. For it has been absolutely proven that the greatest disseminator of typhoid is the little buzzing house fly.

The fly is perfectly adapted for his work of destruction. Hairs over her whole body and sticky pads on her feet enable her to carry millions of bacteria to our food. The simple carrying of bacteria in itself does no harm but the fly lays her eggs in the nastiest places to be found, garbage cans, refuse, excreta of animals, and sewerage. In these places of filth and other infectious diseases, cholera, and other infectious diseases which stick to the fly's feet or are swallowed and later voided on our walls and ceilings as fly specks or worse yet on our food.

The female fly lays from 100 to 150 eggs at a time, several times during the season. The eggs hatch within a few hours, forming maggots which feed actively for about 5 days, depending on the temperature. The maggots then turn into a pupal stage where it remains motionless for about another 5 days and then emerges as a winged insect bent on destruction. There may be ten breeds of flies in one summer and the progeny of a single fly may amount to 5,000,000,000.

The large infant mortality is due principally to the increase in the number of flies which carry the germs of summer diarrhea and infantile paralysis to the child's milk. The great epidemic of typhoid during the Spanish-American war was accompanied by great swarms of flies. Flies feed on the sputum of tubercular patients and scatter that dread disease.

Prevention

In a campaign for the suppression or lessening of the fly nuisance there should be intelligent cooperative work with the view to removing systematically all of these kinds of material in which flies may deposit their eggs and which may be suitable for the development of fly maggots and pupae. Much more, indeed, may be accomplished if the main part of the work is directed against the hatching and breeding places rather than attempts at destroying flies when they are abroad upon their wings.

The enormity of the nuisance due to swarms of flies and the danger from them have led boards of health to make by-laws requiring stable manure to be stored temporarily in fly-proof bins or vaults, and that the stable manure thus stored shall be removed regularly at intervals not longer than weekly so that there may not be time for the transformation and emergence of flies before removal.

Borax and iron sulphate are used to kill fly maggots in manure piles. Directions for their use and the construction of fly-proof manure pens may be obtained by writing to the State Board of Health or National Department of Agriculture. It is important to remember that fully 90 per cent of the flies are bred in the horse manure.

One of the safest and surest methods of destroying the adult fly is by placing in a shallow dish a mixture of 1-2 pint of milk and 1-2 pint water to which two tablespoons of formalin have been added. The flies greedily drink this mixture, especially if no other water can be had. This mixture is not extremely dangerous, but should be kept away from children. It will keep indefinitely.

A cheap substitute for fly paper may be made by boiling a pound of rosin in a little more than a half pint of lard oil. This can spread on paper.

The following is taken from the Florida State Board of Health pamphlet: The Danger From Flies.

Flies are the most dangerous insects known to man.

Flies are the filthiest of all vermin. They are born in filth, live on filth and carry filth around with them. They are maggots before they are flies.

Flies are known to be carriers of death-dealing disease germs.

They leave some of these germs wherever they alight.

Flies may infect the food you eat. They come to your kitchen or to your dining table, fresh from the privy vault, from the garbage box, from the manure pile, from the cuspidor, from decaying animal or vegetable matter, or from the contagious sick room with this sort of filth on their feet and in their bodies, and they deposit it on your food, and you do swallow filth from privy vaults, etc., etc., if you eat food that has come in contact with flies.

Flies may infect you with tuberculosis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and other infectious diseases. They have the habit of feasting on tuberculous sputum and other discharges of those sick with these diseases, and then go direct to your food, to your drink, to the lips of your sleeping child, or perhaps to a small open wound on your hands or face. When germs are deposited in milk they multiply very fast; therefore milk should never be exposed to flies.

The following rules are taken from the Bulletin of the State Board of Health of Maine, which is the authority for the above article:

Fighting the Flies

Don't allow flies in your house. Don't permit them near food—especially milk. Don't eat where flies have access to the food.

Don't buy food stuffs where flies are tolerated.

Screen your windows and doors. Do it early before fly time and keep screens up until snow falls.

Screen all food, especially milk. Do not eat food that has been in contact with flies.

Screen the baby's bed and keep flies away from the baby's bottle, the baby's food and the baby's "comforter."

Keep flies away from the sick, especially those ill with typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and tuberculosis. Screen the patient's bed. Kill every fly that enters the sick room. Immediately disinfect and dispose of all discharges.

Catch the flies as fast they appear. Use liquid poisons, sticky fly papers and traps.

Destroy Their Breeding Places. By means of tight construction exclude flies from privy vaults. Burn garbage or keep it away from flies in tight receptacles. Keep the ground around garbage cans or boxes clean.

To destroy fly-maggots in manure and other refuse, sprinkle with a solution of borax, one-half pound in two gallons of water. Keep manure in screened pit or vault if possible. Manure should be removed at least every week.

Keep flies from infectious matter, particularly that which comes from persons with tuberculosis or typhoid fever.

Clean cuspidors every day. Keep 5 per cent solution of carbolic acid in them all the time, or keep the contents covered with formaldehyde solution. Get rid of sawdust boxes used as cuspidors—despise them—they are unsanitary and dangerous. Allow no decaying matter of any sort to accumulate on or near your premises. Flies in a house indicate a careless housekeeper. Remember: No dirt—no flies. People interested in the removal of the fly pest should write for the bulletin, "Notes on the Fly Question by the State Board of Health."

"What's The Use?"

Sometimes people ask: "What's the use of dressing children so nicely?" What's the use of spending time on a flower garden? What's the use of poetry? Why not say it in plain English? We answer: What's the use of the dimple in the baby's cheek? or the sheen on the pigeon's neck? or the flash of the bluebird's wing? or the fragrance of the rose? Singularly enough, the poet is regarded by many as an unpractical and unproductive member of society—a drone in the hive of industry. Many people believe that it would be better to put a pick and shovel into his hands, and set him at some "useful task." But, happily, life is not constituted solely on the pick-and-shovel principle. The earth is not flat, and the sky is not a metallic vault. On the other hand, this little globe of ours is on the most romantic of journeys, bathing itself in the very elements of magic as it flies, and surrounded by the unutterable poetry of the infinite expanse which surges through every star and every child, every grass-blade, and every smallest grain of dust in our garden path.

HOT WEATHER RULES

1. Load lightly, and drive slowly.

2. Stop in the shade if possible.

3. Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him.

4. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.

5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge. Use vinegar if possible. Do not turn the hose on him.

6. Saturday night, give a bran mash, lukewarm; and add a tablespoon of salt-petre.

7. Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy-top hat. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.

8. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.

9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of warm coffee. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or, if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.

10. If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.

11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stams with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.

12. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

Calosoma Beetle Foe to Gypsy Moth.

The calosoma beetle, which was introduced into New England in order to combat the gypsy moth, is declared by entomologists in the United States Department of Agriculture to have firmly established itself in its new environment. The first of these green beetles were sent from Europe in 1905. Between then and 1910 a little over 4000 of the insects were shipped to this country. They have multiplied and spread with extraordinary rapidity and are now so abundant that many people in New England are familiar with their appearance and habits.

Investigations show that these insects, both as beetles and as larvae, consume enormous quantities of the gypsy moth larvae. They are able to climb the trees upon which their prey are feeding and are most active during the periods when the gypsy moths are abundant. The calosoma beetle in fact, seems to be admirably adapted in every way to destroy the gypsy moth. It is not apparently injured by the wilt disease which is so prevalent in its prey, and neither is it apparently affected by the sprays used to control the gypsy moth. At the present time it is regarded as the most important of the natural enemies of this widespread pest. A new professional paper of the United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin 251, contains a detailed description of the calosoma beetle, its distribution, life history and habits.

WELCHVILLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Anderson of Portland who have been guests of A. W. Wood and family for the past three weeks returned home to Portland Wednesday.

Mr. Sawyer from Auburn has been visiting her schoolmate Ruth Lamb the past week.

Some of the farmers are done haying. Mrs. Susan Blanchard and granddaughters, Margaret Smith from Portland and sister, Ned and Hattie Loring, also Annie Warren.

Nora Scribner has been working a few days down to North's camp on the shore of Lake Thompson.

Ruth Lamb who is working in the hospital at Providence, R. I., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Lamb.

Mrs. Fannie Stackpole of Massachusetts is visiting her friend, Mrs. Llewellyn Spurr.

Mr. Z. Willis Kemp and family of Kingston, N. H., are stopping at Kemps' camp on the shore of Lake Thompson.

Mrs. Lizzie Holden and Mrs. Peter Wood were in Oxford, Sunday to attend funeral of the late Mrs. M. W. Brackett.

Willie Spurr took a party of campers from Scribner Hill to Portland Friday.

Rained in a Variety Shower. Rain! Rain! Rain! And then more rain. Certainly too much for haying.

Almost too much for fishing. However, a variety shower at the home of Mr. W. Wood on Friday afternoon was much enjoyed by the forty or more ladies present.

The occasion was in honor of Mrs. Margaret Webber, nee Jones, formerly that step daughter of South's who used to raise sheep. The conditions in marriage to J. P. Robinson, son of which they raise sheep are in a John H. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is one of our prosperous young farmers.

The shower was a surprise to Mrs. Webber and she was fully appreciated by her as she raised sheep. The conditions in marriage to J. P. Robinson, son of which they raise sheep are in a John H. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is one of our prosperous young farmers.

HOT-DAY BEVERAGES

Raspberry and Currant. Put a pint of red raspberries and a quart of currants into a preserving kettle and mash them thoroughly. Set the kettle over a moderate heat and let the fruit cook gradually. When the mixture begins to boil take it at once from the fire and strain it through a jelly bag into a big bowl. When it is clear and cold sweeten to taste and put against the ice to chill. This is generally served in small wine glasses.

Pineapple Lemonade. Boil one pound of granulated sugar in a pint of water until it is a thick syrup. Take off the steam as it rises. Squeeze the juice of three lemons in a bowl, and peel a pineapple, cutting out all the eyes. Then grate the pineapple into the lemon juice, pouring in the sugar sirup after this and stirring briskly for about three minutes. Add a quart of fresh water and strain into a glass pitcher, putting in a lump of ice when serving.

Mixed Fruit Drink. The more varieties of fruit used in this the better. Cut up the following fruits in small bits and cover them for three hours with plenty of sugar: Pineapples, oranges, lemons (also peels of these), grapefruit, one or two large apples and some juicy pears. When ready to serve cover the fruit with distilled or mineral water, add maraschino cherries, a few softened figs, several slices of preserved citron and some fresh strawberries. Put in cracked ice and serve the drink in a big glass pitcher, so that the pretty effect of the fruit can be seen.

With Cold Tea. Cold tea can be made the foundation of many delicious hot-day beverages. Mixed with an equal quantity of ordinary lemonade the result is refreshing. Orange juice combined with the tea, too. Any odd bits of jelly that are in the refrigerator can be melted and added to it, with lemon juice to counteract undue sweetness. The addition of fruit juice of any sort with cold vichy water or apollinaris or imported ginger ale makes of plain cold tea a very tempting drink.

About the Ice. Always shave ice thin for cold drinks. Large pieces of ice are difficult to manipulate in a glass. Small bits are far pleasanter. They are more attractive to the eye, too. An ice shaver for preparing ice for freezing ice cream can be used to prepare ice for beverages. If such a shaver is not at hand a big piece of ice can be put in a stout cloth and hammered on a stone until the ice is crushed. Then it should be put in a strainer, quickly rinsed under cold water, and then used.

The Spread of the Vacation Habit. In a previous generation vacations teachers got them. Business men usually came to quit. If they withdrew were the rare exception. Ministers and their noses from their ledgers they might. As for working people getting any outing, that was unheard of.

Factories probably worked in a more unremitting way then. Orders were given for large lots a long time ahead. Most shops were busy in summer making goods for the next winter. Today more orders are given for quick deliveries. Factories run at high pressure then times are dull. Many working men may not get any formal and regular vacation but there are times when the shop is shut down when they get all the loafing they care for.

A farmer's wife some years ago took a $10 bill and went over into the next state to visit a relative and was declared by her neighbors to have committed suicide. The woman had been working from dawn to dusk in summer and during the winter they hibernated.

Today the farm people do a great deal of traveling. Not in summer, as they have too large interests at stake. But read the rural correspondence of any country paper during other parts of the year. Notice what a lot of going and coming there is. Farmers and their families may not go much to costly hotels. They may be able to, afford it as well as many of the people that do. They don't care for bridge and tangoing and afternoon tea and piazza gossip. If they want time off they visit relatives and friends, look over other sections of the country and see how other farmers are doing it. Their time off perhaps pays them better returns in money than any week in the year.

So the American people have their going shoes on. In the case of people of wealth there is no more travel than is needed for diversion and for an intelligent conception of other parts of the country.—Sanford Tribune.

Why Wealth Seeks the Farm. A distinctive class is composed of city families that own farms for occupancy during the summer. These families maintain at least two homes, one in the city and one on the farm. They are usually wealthy and agriculture is a mere incident of their country life. The movement is noticeable mostly east of the Mississippi River, especially in New England, the Middle States, Virginia, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. The motives behind it are change of environment, recreation and pleasure. The results of this seasonal movement in many States are described as not entirely pleasing to the "native" farmers among whom high priced labor on the "farms" and demoralize the local labor market. They hold aloof from the local population, do not support local interests and contribute nothing to the permanent social, educational and religious life of the people. They are often examples of extravagance and tend to create unrest among farmers' boys and girls, who begin to fear that labor is not respectable and who dream of more costly styles of living.

Grape Preserves. Grape preserves are often not a success because the skins are not cooked alone in a little water until tender; they require good steady simmering. When the pulp is squeezed out, it must be stewed until tender and the seeds come away easily; it is then put through a hair sieve and the tender skins added with a little of the water they were stewed in, retained, the whole boiled up together, with a good half-pint of sugar to each quart. Bottle while hot.

"Hundreds at the Big Fair." That headline in various papers the past week sounds like fall to people of Oxford County.

MILTON PLANTATION.

The Chippewa Camp Fire Girls met for their regular business meeting Monday night at their guardian's home. It is expected that they will have a work meeting or go on a hike Saturday.

Mrs. Jennie Abbott of Locke's Mills has been the guest of her cousin, Mrs. C. E. Jackson for the past week.

PREVENTION OF SUNBURN MUCH BETTER THAN CURE

It much better to give careful thought to sunburn before it is acquired than after sun, wind and sea have gotten in their deadly work on the complexion; for whereas 50 cents worth of cold cream and talcum powder will soothe the skin and prevent the ugly swelling and blistering incident to bad sunburn, days of pain and real injury to the appearance may result from neglect of this care.

Tan is rather a delightful thing—out in the open and in company with the cool white linen of sport attire; but tan with a filmy evening gown or a formal afternoon toilette is another thing entirely—and by midsummer the woman who adores lavender and whose skin burns easily, will look a fright in her most cherished gowns. And the complexion exposed recklessly to the weather all summer will never again get back its delicate milk and rose tint, for sunburn inevitably toughens and coarsens the skin and cosmetic make-up takes the place of the natural rose flush before very long. So the wise maid anticipates sunburn and prepares to combat it at the season's very beginning.

Before going out on the blazing beach in one's bathing costume, the face, neck and arms should be anointed with cold cream applied liberally and well rubbed into the pores. After dabbing over the creamed surface with a soft towel or bit of absorbent cotton, sprinkle with pure talcum powder and some fresh chamomile or rose petals if a break breeze.

Thinly armored, the skin will resist the onslaughts of sea, sun and wind; for cuticle protected with cold cream and covered with talcum does not burn readily. In the evening, particularly if a brisk breeze will be well to retire to the bath-house during the period and repeat the cold cream and talcum treatment.

If the complexion is naturally fair and delicate, a veil should always be worn in the sun, and the face should be washed and glycerine from the water accompany strong sunshine. Brown veils are the best preventatives of sunburn, but a white veil, draped over a wide-brimmed hat will be excellent protection.
